

Abstract

The present invention provides a digital topography imaging system that may be employed to determine crystalline structure of a sample and methods for using 5 said system.